County Engineer Keith White updated the Board on secondary road projects and flooding issues.

Discussion was held with Zoning Administrator Eric Furnas regarding a draft of a written response to IDPH's request for a list of the County's health concerns with regard to slag that has been placed upon the roads. Furnas stated the draft reiterated concerns following the January conference call as well as concerns from the citizens that have been raised. Sauer stated he does not see anything in the draft about leaching. Mather stated the response should include asking if the DNR has any concern over any kind of water contamination. Sauer stated he watched a particular area that has a lot of slag and there have been several freeze/thaws and he visibly cannot see any change of this product splitting or reducing in size throughout this winter. Furnas stated the County intends for the DNR to independently sample the roads with no direction from the County other than to tell them where slag has been applied. Furnas stated he included the County felt it was prudent to examine the levels of the elements for the risks of any type of exposure. Mather summarized the draft should include concerns about water contamination and leachate, methods of ingestion and soil contamination. Daryll Sywassink suggested livestock exposure adjacent to the roads also be examined through the state toxicologist in Ames. Sywassink requested a sub sample of every sample picked so that he can spot check them. Furnas stated he will reach out to the DNR and ask them if they would consider maintaining a sub sample in reserve. Sywassink stated he would also like to be able to observe collection of the samples. Furnas stated he can find out information about the DNR's observation plan.
